

A setting for Gogol's The Inspector General, as presented by Stanislavsky at the Moscow Arts Theater in 1908. In this often hilarious, biting satire, Gogol
the corruption, grossness and complacency of the government bureaucracy 19th century provincial Russia.

NYC TO RVA

I grew up in NY for my entire life and I wanted to move somewhere different—first I was thinking Berlin, but then I was like I wanted to wait an extra year and save money—and then Covid happened. I was working at a hospital for like eight years doing pharmacy tech and... I was working at a hospital in downtown Manhattan in the trauma center and like, I don't know if you ever saw the news stories when they had the freezer trucks in the back—those were in the back of my hospital—so it was dark and I was already kind of done with that job and once that started I was like 'I am really outta here.'

Richmond is kind of an opposite kind of spot to NYC: it still has a lot of things going on but it's small, and I wanted to experience something completely different. The idea of moving to a city somewhere else in the US at least didn't seem appealing because everytime, especially going on tour and stuff, why would I move to another big city?
